TO SCAN INCOME TAX RETURNS

Senate Committee's Inquiry Gets Under Way.

MELLON OPENS UP THE FILES

Committee Also to Delve Into the Operations of the Prohibition Bureau—Questionnaire Submitted by Probers to Secretary of the Treasury—Open Hearing Likely Within Four or Five Weeks.

Washington, Sept. 19.—With Secretary of the Treasury Mellon present, hearings of the senate investigation of the internal revenue bureau got under way here.

The first act of the committee was to adopt a resolution empowering its counsel and agents to requistion or copy such income tax returns as the committee desires to examine.

Senator King of Utah served notice that a similar resolution empowering agents of the committee to delve into the prohibition bureau would be adopted later. Mellon assented to this.

Senator Couzens of Michigan, chairman of the committee, was authorized to appoint a force of examiners, engineers and agents, to go through the files of the income tax and prohibition units of the internal revenue bureau in search of information desired.

Public hearings will begin as soon as Secretary Mellon replies to a questionnaire submitted by the committee concerning surtaxes and its agents gather the data they will be instructed to find. Chairman Couzens estimated that from five to six weeks probably would be required for these preliminaries, but said the hearings would begin before the elections should the information required by the committee be available.

Secretary Mellon told the committee he had directed that any data in his department called for be furnished the committee, including income tax reports, and that such agents as it might appoint be given unobstructed access to all departmental papers. The information called for in the questionnaire handed Secretary Mellon, Senator Couzens explained, would give the committee full knowledge concerning surtaxes and enable congress to determine for itself the soundness of Secretary Mellon's recommendations for a reduction of taxes upon large incomes.

The force of examiners, engineers and agents Couzens was authorized to appoint is expected to look into all charges of fraud and maladministration, gather from the prohibition unit complete data concerning employes, including those who have been dismissed, investigating the system used in granting permits for release of alcoholic liquors, and study the records of hearings before the prohibition bureau on the cancellation and issuance of liquor permits.

The questionnaire calls upon Secretary Mellon to furnish names and addresses of each taxpayer reporting net incomes exceeding $300,000 for 1918; the returns for 1920 of those who reported personal net incomes exceeding $300,000 for 1916; returns showing personal net incomes between $180,000 and $300,000 for 1916; returns from 1920 of those who reported personal net incomes between $150,000 and $300,000 in 1916; returns showing the personal incomes between $100,000 and $150,000 in 1916; returns for 1920 of those who reported net incomes between $100,000 and $150,000 for 1916, and returns for 1917 to 1923, inclusive of individuals who reported personal net incomes exceeding $100,000 in 1916.

Posed as Inspector.

Detroit, Sept. 19.—Authorities are searching for a man in connection with the disappearance of a package containing $10,000 in currency from a registered mail pouch at Mt. Clemens last Friday. Burley Parsons, agent at the Grand Trunk railway station in Mt. Clemens, told postal inspectors that a stranger, representing himself to be an inspector and presenting credentials, obtained access to the pouch shortly after it was delivered at the station.

Literary Digest's Poll.

New York, Sept. 19.—First returns in the Literary Digest's poll of 15,000,000 voters show President Coolidge running well in the lead, Senator La Follette second and John W. Davis, Democratic nominee, third. The returns numbered over 25,000 votes from California, Illinois, New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

CHI LI TROOPS VICTORIOUS

Defending Army Before Shanghai Suffers Severe Reverse.

LINES BROKEN BY ATTACKERS

More Than a Million Natives Seek Refuge in Shanghai's Foreign Settlement, Which Is Guarded by International Troops—American Destroyers Train Guns on the Woosung Forts.

Shanghai, Sept. 19.—The Chinese army defending Shanghai suffered a severe reverse in its latest engagement with Chi Li troops.

General Chi Hsieh Yuan launched an irresistible attack after artillery preparation and the defenders' lines crumbled.

A mob of retreating soldiers and civilians bore back upon Shanghai and it was feared they would overrun the thin line of foreign settlement guards. More than 1,000 international marines and sailors were ordered to the gates and barriers of the settlement.

The victorious Chi Li troops headed a drive for the Woosing forts nearest the sector guarded by American marines. Three American destroyers, their guns trained on the forts, were stripped for action and standing by.

Conditions in the foreign settlements are extremely precarious. More than a million refugees already have sought shelter behind the barricades where the marines with machine guns and armored cars stand ready to put down any concerted attempt of Chinese to rush the barrier.

Lu Yung Hsiang's ally, General Pei Ko Kan, surrendered with all his troops to the Fokien commander, Sun Chuen Fang. The civil governor, Hang Chow, proclaimed his independence of Lu and fled to Shanghai.

The only Chekiang forces still holding out are on the Liuho Wangdo front, not far from the city, and they were expected to surrender immediately.

A presidential mandate issued by Tso Kun formally declared war against Chang Tso Lin, Manchurian war lord, whose forces are engaging Chi Li troops north of the capital. Chang declared war against the Pekin government last week. Wu Pei Fu, most powerful leaer of the Chi Li faction, was appointed generalissimo to conduct an immediate punative campaign against Chang.

NOT SIGNALS FROM MARS

French Scientist Says They Came Not From Planet but From Sun.

Paris, Sept. 19.—Abbe Moreau, famous astronomer of the observatory at Bourges, says the mysterious signals which are reported as having been picked up at Ottawa and other places when Mars was close to the earth, did not come from the planet, but from the sun. Abbe Moreau recalls that several years ago, at the time of the last conjunction of Mars and earth, similar signals were observed. Astronomers all over the world took up the matter and solved the enigma. But their conclusions were never published. The French observer says the mysterious waves are what are known as "parasite waves," which break in often on wireless receivers and are caused by electric phenomena in the atmosphere. It was remarked that these "parasite waves" always came from continents or high mountains. In other words, they were not signals, but merely a terrestrial effect of the sun's rays.

URGES IMMEDIATE TRIAL OF FORBES

World War Veterans Adopt Series of Resolutions.

FAVOR NATIONAL DEFENSE DAY

Legion Convention Also Urges Congress and Navy Department to Bring the American Navy Sea Power Up to Ratio Fixed by Naval Armament Agreement—Contest for National Commander.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 19.—Immediate trial of Colonel Charles R. Forbes, former head of the veterans' bureau, is demanded in a resolution adopted by the American Legion national convention.

The military affairs committee recommended perpetuation of national defense day and urged that regular army private's pay be increased to $30 a month and that provision be made for voluntary retirement after 25 years of honorable service.

The convention urged congress and the navy department to bring the United States navy sea power up to the terms of the 5-5-3 ratio of the naval armament agreement. "It is a well known fact," said the naval affairs committee report, "that the ratio is now 5-4-3, with the United States occupying the position of four."

New York cast its entire 74 votes to Nebraska, giving Omaha the 1925 national convention and while the Nebraska delegation denied any trading, it was general talk that the corn huskers would come to the aid of New York in the fight for Edward E. Spafford for national commander of the legion.

There still are seven "leading" candidates and a host of favorite sons for commander. Several delegations were split anu unable to agree on a voting plan past the three ballots, when favorite sons will be given a run.

Major General James G. Harbord was trotted out in an effort to get an agreement. The contingent which failed to interest John J. Pershing was casting about for some one else of high army standing. Meantime the fight seemed centered around General J. R. McQuigg of Cleveland, Edward E. Spafford of New York and James A. Drain of the District of Columbia.

FOR LOCAL ROAD IMPROVEMENTS

Thirty Counties of Ohio Pledged to Vote on Levies.

Columbus, Sept. 19.—Thirty counties of the state notified the Ohio Good Roads federation at a meeting of its trustees here that they would vote at the November election on levies for local road purposes. The proposed levies are for 1 or 2 mills, extending over a period of three to five years. If all the levies are approved, it is estimated, $4,000,000 will become available annually for local road improvements. The federation is to assist in the campaign for these levies, furnishing data, posters and other material.

The trustees of the federation gave their approval to a tentative state highway program and budget for 1925-6. The program specifies which roads, in the opinion of the state highway department and the Ohio Good Roads federation, which collaborated in its preparation, should be improved within the next two years.

At a series of district conferences to be held within the next few weeks, attended by state highway, divisional and county engineers, county officials, members of the Good Roads federation and others, these programs will be reviewed and the final conclusions will be laid before the general assembly at its next session.

CROWE AGAINST PARDON

Will Clash With Darrow Again In Grant Boy's Case.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe and Attorney Clarence Darrow will come to grips again next month, this time over the life of a penniless youth. Now that Darrow has promised to appear personally before the board of pardons in behalf of Bernard Grant, sentenced to hang Oct. 17 for the murder of a policeman, Crowe has started to prepare his fight against pardon or commutation of sentence. If he does not appear in person against Darrow, he will direct the maneuvers of one of his assistants. "So far a petition has not been placed before the governor in behalf of Grant," Crowe said. "We shall oppose overturning of the sentence. Grant was found guilty of murder and the jury directed the death penalty. His age has nothing to do with it."

When Darrow appears before the board he will have the weight of some 2,000,000 names behind him, Attorney Thomas E. Swanson, acting for Grant, stated.

Employes Bound Over.

Chillicothe, O., Sept. 19.—Lawrence Williams, Alfred Phillips and Myron G. Rose, employes of the Rose Brothers company, wrecking engineers at Camp Sherman, have been bound over to the federal grand jury under $2,000 bond each on charges of having in their possession government property not called for under the company's contract with the government. FRAUD ORDER Issued Against Photoplay Studio and Scenario Editor.

Washington, Sept. 19.—The postoffice department has issued a fraud order against the Bristol Photoplay studio and Vernon Hoagland, scenario editor of New York city, prohibiting circulation of their advertisements through the mail. Postoffice inspectors investigated Hoagland's business and found that it consisted of inducing persons who wrote scenarios to send them to the studio, together with a sum of money, in return for which the studio would make possible prompt sale of the manuscripts. They also discovered that during the several years the business had been operating, not a single one of the thousands of plays received has been sold.

Two Killed at Crossing.

Geneva, O., Sept. 19.—Horace Hill, 40, and August Newman, 50, employes of the American Fork and Hoe company, were killed instantly at a grade crossing here when their automobile was struck by a New York Central train. What He Found Written Under Prison Bench

By AUGUSTUS SHERWIN

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

I HAD been the employee of a private detective agency for ten years when Dan Haley was released from the penitentiary. I had been advised of the day when he was to be released.

The warden fixed a serious look upon me. "See here, Blake," he said, "you have been a good man in your line, and I wish I could give you some suggestions regarding Haley. Of course you, who made his famous capture ten years since, have never forgiven him for hiding the booty and keeping it hid."

"At least I know it is hidden," I declared with positiveness. "I am satisfied that when closely cornered, he disposed of his plunder in some safe secret place."

"That all sounds reasonable," nodded the warden. The only thing is, that while Haley has been not only our best behaved convict and close-mouthed as a clam during the past year, he has changed."

"How changed?" I asked.

"He has become queer. He shows lapse of memory. It would be a strange retribution, would it not," added the official insinuatingly, "if after all his cunning planning Haley had forgotten where he concealed that plunder—hey?"

"Zounds!" I could not refrain from remarking—"that would upset all my fond calculations indeed."

They were fond, those same, for a very superior reason. I was in love. More than that, I was in love with the daughter of John Marsh, and John Marsh was the then wealthy merchant from whom Haley had stolen a cool hundred thousand dollars.

At the time of the deed the lawyer of Mr. Marsh paid me a five hundred dollar reward for capturing the culprit. At the same time he advised me that in case I recovered the booty or any part of it, twenty-five per cent of the same should be mine. At the end of a few months I gave up hunting for the hidden fortune—for ten years.

At the end of the ninth year I sought out Mr. Marsh. He was no longer a capitalist. I found him living in a very humble way, supported by the earnings of his daughter, Constance, a music teacher.

When I recalled his former loss, he was aroused to desperate excitement. He offered me half of what I might secure.

It was not this prospect of a munificent reward, however, that impelled me to perfect my plans with renewed diligence and fervor. It was because I had seen and now worshiped Constance Marsh. I think I first won her kindly attention by my steadfastness of purpose in pursuing an apparently hopeless case to the end.

I had not seen Dan Haley since he entered the penitentiary. I was shocked at his aged appearance. He seemed lost in his new environment. The free air, the bright sunshine and varied crowds did not inspire him, they rather confused.

His first move with the money the prison authorities had given him was to board a train for the town where he had formerly lived. He was a widower. Haley proceeded to the site of the house where he once lived. It was easy to shadow him.

The house he expected to find had been burned down for two years. A new one was now in course of construction. Finally, after an hour, he turned from the place.

My heart sank within me—Dan Haley had forgotten!

I knew it surer than ever the next day, when he left the little lodging house he had put up at, with myself for a vigilant neighbor in the next room. He started out to seek work. I was near to him when he approached a carpenter building a fence. The latter held a board across a saw horse and was just turning it to mark where it should be sawed with the pencil in his hand, when I noticed a sudden glow in Haley's eyes. He uttered what was almost a scream. He started from the spot on a dead run.

Straight to the railroad depot Haley proceeded, thence by train to the prison town and then to the very doors of the penitentiary he had left less then twenty-four hours previously.

I am a detective and therefore have to think. I mentally connected the carpenter and the prison, and when I heard Haley humbly solicit the warden to allow him to revisit his former cell I nodded to the latter and followed.

Once inside the cell Haley got down and looked at the under surface of the bench riveted to the wall. He transcribed some words written there.

I traced those tell-tale words later. They were: "Under the woodshed floor." Then I was on his trail again.

I took him in charge as he returned to his native town. Then I visited the shed. It was to recover the long secreted plunder.

I refused any reward from the delighted Mr. Marsh, the love of Constance outweighed all sordid considerations. Haley did not realize any particular disappointment, for he forgot his recent discovery in a day or two. Mr. Marsh found him work and the ex-convict developed into quite a respectable artisan.

KEEPING WELL

WHOOPING COUGH IS NO JOKE

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

WHOOPING COUGH is generally regarded as one of the mildest and least important of children's diseases. It is often regarded almost as a joke. Sometimes mothers, ignorant of the danger, deliberately expose their children to it so they can "get it and have it over with."

But whooping cough is no joke, as most mothers and all doctors know. Any disease which kills one-half of all the babies under one year which take it is rather a grim joke. During the second year 27 per cent die. Between the second and fifth years 18 per cent die. Over 80 per cent of all cases and about 97 per cent of all deaths from whooping cough are in children under five years old.

The great danger is not in the disease itself but in the pneumonia that often follows it.

Whooping cough is caused by a germ which grows in the lungs and throat. When the sick child coughs, it throws out drops of moisture which contain quantities of these germs. The well child breathes them in and in from seven to ten days develops the disease. It can also be carried from the sick to the well child by slate pencils, lead pencils, apples, candy, especially all-day suckers, gum or anything else which is passed from one child to another.

The symptoms are those of an ordinary cold with a slight cough and fever. Soon the cough changes to the peculiar "whoop" from which the disease gets its name. This is due to the choking up of the throat with mucus. There may be half a dozen or as many as forty or fifty of these spasms in twenty-four hours. The disease usually lasts for about six weeks but may last for four months. The danger is in the pneumonia which may develop in the weakened child and cause speedy death.

Whooping cough is a dangerous disease. Don't take any chances. Keep your child away from children who may have it. Don't let it play with infected children. If your child does get it, protect it from cold and exposure until the disease has run its course.

Famous Monument Moves.

The Washington monument, solid as it is, cannot resist the heat of the sun poured on its southern side on a midsummer day without a slight bending of the gigantic shaft. This is perceptible by means of a copper wire, 174 feet long, hanging in the center of the structure, and carrying a plummet suspended in a vessel of water. At noon in summer the apex of the mounment, 550 feet above the ground, is shifted by expansion of the stone a few hundredths of an inch toward the north. High winds cause perceptible motions of the plummet, and in still weather delicate vibrations of the crust of the earth, otherwise unperceived, are registered by it.

Seemed Incomplete.

A new baby had come to the home, and the neighbors' little ones were allowed to come in to see him. A little one looked him over generally, then moved down to the bottom of the long dress and, quite puzzled, asked, "Ain't he dot his feet yet?"

A Pioneer Wooing.

The Dutch patroons of the Hudson and the Mohawk valley were a hardy race. Years ago, says Mr. James Fenimore Cooper in "Legends of a Northern County," I was told the story of the wooing of charming Margritta von Schlechtenhorst, wife of Philip Schuyler. It seems that Philip, who was big and stout, came to blows with Margritta's father on the trail near Rensselaerwyck in a dispute over pelts or tobacco or rum. Philip was winning when Margritta rushed to the aid of her father and began to beat his antagonist. Philip was so much impressed with her fistic ability and with her possible value as an ally in those days of red men and danger that he wooed and married her. All that was about the year 1650. I cannot vouch for the story, but it was an old man's tale when I was a boy in Albany, where many people spoke Dutch of the Seventeenth century.

Strange Birds in Belgian Congo.

Strange birds make their habitat in the Belgian Congo, in the dense forest and high grass region of Central Africa. The hornbill, for instance makes a curious nest. The female lays her eggs in a hollow tree. The hole is filled up with mud, leaving an aperture, too small to allow the female to get out, but through which the male supplies food while the eggs are hatching. Weaver birds weave their nests out of strips of grass or leaves, and, although the entrance to the nest is from below, it is so constructed that the eggs never roll out. A variety of birds called grass warblers sew their nests of grass between leaves or weeds in the same manner.

Hard on Both.

In the early days in Missouri, when a judicial circuit covered many counties, the circuit judge, traveling on horseback, was often prevented by high water and other causes from reaching the court at the opening of the term. For this emergency a statute was enacted (still on the books) authorizing the lawyers present to elect a special judge to hold the term of court. Col. Jeff Jones, a noted character of Callaway county, was selected a special judge under this statute. When Colonel Jeff mounted the bench, a newly elected sheriff opened the court in a loud voice with the following appropriate announcement. "O yes, O yes; the Circuit court of Callaway county is now in session, the Hon. Jeff Jones presiding; God save the state of Missouri." —T. B. W. in the Docket.

Homes Help Community.

A wealthy Englishman once said that a good home was an institution for civilizing a community, and instead of surrounding his own home by a high hedge, like many in the vicinity, he built about it an open fence, so that whoever passed, rich or poor, might enjoy the beauty of house and lawn and garden. It is a good thing for the girls of today who are to be the home makers of tomorrow, to grow up with the idea that the home owes something to the community.

HERRICK REFRIGERATORS

The Big Difference In Refrigerators

The main object of any refrigerator, of course, is the preservation of foods. The refrigerator that will keep foods in perfect condition longest is naturally the refrigerator you want—provided it dosen't increase your ice bills.

The Herrick answers those requirements with facts—not claims. And it does even more. It actually decreases your ice bills while giving you more effective food preservation.

And why? Simyly because the Herrick is far more than an ice box—far more than a cold storage place. It is built on the scientifically demonstrated principle that more than merely cold air is necessary to keep foods in good condition for any great length of time.

Perhaps the biggest essentials to scientifically correct refrigeration are—

No. 1. Circulation of cold dry air.
No. 2. Effective Insulation.
No. 3. Air-tight construction.

That the Herrick has these necessary essentials is a demonstrated fact.

Many proofs of the truth are visible even to the least informed purchaser. Others are hidden within the walls of the refrigerator, but nevertheless there, performing their functions so important to good health and economy.

Reason Must Dominate Love.

Love is atavistic. It sprang from our prehistoric ancestors, who dwelt in the cliffs and went forth and secured what they desired by brute force. It was not a question of intellect or sentiment at that time. As the human race has advanced intellectually this instinct has become polished, modernized, but the same force which actuated the cave man is still the predominating factor of modern society, and until reason displaces sentiment, until intellect displaces instinct, we shall be slaves.—Chicago News.

Balsam Gum.

The gum of the balsam fir, Abies balsamea, is known commercially as Canada balsam, and is largely used in the manufacture of optical instruments and in various other ways about scientific laboratories. There is a constant market for it, the price varying with the quality and the supply. Some time ago a fair quality was worth 20 cents per pound.

The Thrift of Years.

Every man should strive to live at least 100 years and die all hitched up in working harness. Many a man feels that he would like to retire at about sixty and spend the rest of his years with nothing to do but lead a gold-headed cane around by the hand. It is thrifty to stay on the job just as long as possible. Every man should make the century plant his favorite flower and the undertaker his worst enemy.—Thrift Magazine.

Man-Hating Women Combine.

A secret society of man-hating women is developing in the artistic centers of London, according to a psychic exponent. During a lecture on "The Great Menance of Ultra Feminism" he said that such a society had been formed and was operating in London, preaching doctrines of sex hatred and was planning to organize a campaign to make all men the slaves of women. He said the inveterate man haters aim at the complete subjugation of man by womankind. He further said that the converts to the movement were recruited in large stores, where they are combating men assistants, and also in hospitals where nurses are taught to undermine the doctors. A woman friend of his, he said, had been invited to a formal lecture given by a French woman on sex war, and found herself in a center of this man-hating society, where the lecturer declared that its aim was to keep men in subordinate positions, "just as men have kept women in slavery for centuries."

Aceticism.

Aceticism means the practicing of severe virtues, or the mastering of desires and passions. It might be termed the extreme practice of the simple life. Among the ancient Greeks it denoted the exercise and discipline practiced by the athletes and wrestlers.

The Unconventional Professor.

One of the most extraordinary examples of unconventionality in dress was Prof. F. W. Newman. He often clothed himself in onion fashion—three coats, one over the other, and the last one green. In winter weather he would wear trousers edged with six or eight inches of black leather. During that period of the year his favorite outer garment was a rug, with a hole in the middle for his head. But even this, Professor Newman's biographer notes, was not such a surprising vagary of public costume as that of another professor, very dreamy and absent-minded, who, being intent on making some abstruse point clear to a young lady pupil, walked one evening round and round a London square with her, talking earnestly and attired in his top hat and dressing gown. — Manchester Guardian.

To Keep Cider Sweet.

To keep cider sweet place in each barrel immediately on making, mustard, four ounces; salt, one ounce, and ground chalk, one ounce. Shake well. Or, cider may be preserved sweet by canning in airtight cans after the manner of preserving fruit. The liquid should be first settled and racked off from the dregs, but fermentation must not be allowed to commence before canning or it will not keep.

MAN WITH PRICE ON HIS HEAD WRITES FOR PAPER

Todor Alexandroff, Macedonian Rebel Leader, Startles the People of Belgrade.

Belgrade.—While the Serbian government is offering a price for him, dead or alive, Todor Alexandroff, the Macedonian rebel leader, entered into Serbian politics the other day with an article on the first page of the Republica, which made Belgradians rub their eyes.

After pointing out that in his opinion Serbians mistakenly ascribe the unrest in Macedonia to the incompetent Pashitch administration, to provocations from Bulgaria, to the "traitor" Raditch or to the "cruel" Alexandroff, Alexandroff writes, over his signature as a member of the central committee of the Internal Macedonian organization: "All oppressed nationalities who jealously guard their nationality are struggling shoulder to shoulder to attain their right to self-determination.

"After they have won their autonomy, they will be in a position to organize a great federated state with equal rights for all nationalities.

"Neither a powerful government, able to repress the activities of revolutionary bands, nor a good administration can prevent the dissolution of imperialistic Yugo-Slavia. The oppressed nationalities in Serbia are struggling neither for the attainment of a strong chauvinistic government nor for a wise Serbian administration (two incompatible terms), but for their liberties.

"In closing I wish to quote the words of Mazzini in 1848 about the Austrians:

"That you govern well is not what we desire, but that you depart."

Like Jail Life So Much They Break In

Sydney, Australia.—Jail holds no terror for Kanakas—they like it so well that police in the Morobe district find it difficult to prevent the native bushmen from breaking in jail. A district officer recently sentenced a Kanaka to six months in jail, where he found rations to his liking and took pride in the uniform provided him. When his sentence expired he refused to leave the jail, and within 24 hours after he was forcibly put out of jail he "broke in" three times. Finally he was made a guard.

Dog Saves His Mistress

Port Jervis, N. Y.—Mrs. Henry Tschudy, sixty, of Matamoras, Pa., was stricken with paralysis while picking huckleberries in the mountains of Pike county, Pa., the other day. Her dog realized something was wrong with his mistress, who lay unconscious, and, by continuous barking, attracted other berry pickers. It was necessary to get the woman's husband before the dog would permit any one to touch his mistress. Mrs. Tschudy was carried on an improvised stretcher through the steep rocky mountain, a mile to the nearest road, where an automobile and physician were waiting. She was taken home.

ALONG LIFE'S TRAIL

By THOMAS A. CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

HER FIRST SMOKE

GLADYS belonged to what they were pleased to call the "younger set" of her village. Her family was eminently respectable. Her mother was an officer of the Ladies' Aid society, and her father was a trustee of the local Baptist church. When she was younger Gladys had gone to Sunday school and had been treasurer of the Young People's society. She outgrew these things in time, of course, and considered herself now one of the leading young people of the town.

She was thoroughly up-to-date. She bobbed her hair and washed it with a decoction of henna; she wore evening dresses in the morning, and satin slippers with French heels on the street, and long dangling earrings and carried rouge, and a lip stick and everything in a little patent leather box dangling from her wrist, as the real swells do in the big cities like New York and Paris and Butte, Montana, you know. She'd been engaged twice—not engaged to be married of course, but just engaged—but both attacks had been light.

Even from this brief sketch it is plain that Gladys was quite a girl who knew a few things about the ways of the world. Her intimate friend, Maude, had drank a cocktail once at a dinner dance, and she smoked, so she confessed, though Gladys had never seen her perform this rite.

It was a little humiliating to Gladys that she had never had either experience, but she had managed whenever the subject of smoking or hootch came up in her conversations with her worldly friends to avoid these damaging admissions.

Her father smoked a cigar occasionally after dinner; her brother carried the makin's in his pocket; but she didn't feel equal either to the cigar or "rolling her own." Luck favored her, however; one of the fellows staying all night with her brother, Bob, left a half-used package of cigarettes on the dresser, and her chance had come.

When she was alone in her room, the door locked and the window open, she nerved herself for the experience. She shut her eyes and the match burned, the smoke which she drew into her lungs choked her, the tobacco bit her tongue, but she was game. She was determined to like it as one learns to like olives and grand opera and limburger cheese. She smoked the thing quickly, vigorously until it burned her lips. Then the room grew black; nausea seized her, and we draw the veil.

She came to finally and sighed heavily and looked around. "Gosh," she moaned, "but a girl has to go through a lot to be swell." And ain't it the truth!

LONG LIFE FOR WIVES

Energy Saving Kitchens Drawn and Discussed in New Bulletin

Long life for housewives and remodeled kitchens go pretty much together, home economics specialists at the Ohio State university feel.

Not all kitchens need remodeling, of course, but most of them do. With that in mind Geneva M. Bane, specialist in home management at the state university and H. P. Twitchell, agricultural engineer, have prepared a bulletin called "Just Kitchens." It will be ready about October 1, and may be obtained free by writing to the agricultural publication office at the university.

"The kitchen is the farm woman's workshop, the place where she spends about 70 per cent of her working day. This time can often be reduced if the kitchen is carefully planned," the bulletin says.

"A good kitchen is one in which the worker can reach all equipment with little walking. This means compact grouping to eliminate waste."

One of the plans in this bulletin shows a kitchen 21 by 11 feet, with the pantry and sink diagonally opposite each other. In the remodled kitchen the pantry has been done away with and eight feet of the room partitioned off to be divided into a breakfast room and wash room.

Built-in equipment is included in the remodeled kitchen to replace the pantry that was so far away. Work table food storage, cupboards, dumb waiter and sink are placed so as to economize steps and to conserve the housewife's energy.

Plans for built-in equipment, and a detailed discussion on good and bad kitchens, are also in the new bulletin.

Only twenty of these fellowships were granted and everyone having an A. B. degree and one year of post graduate work to his credit. Mr. Edwards is highly honored by this appointment. While there he will conduct special research work for the Washington Institute of Economics.

He is rapidly winning recognition as a student of policital science. After receiving both his A. B. and M. A. degrees at Ohio State university, he went to Minneapolis, where he was a member of the staff of the League of Minnesota Municipalities. — Williamsport News.

HARTMAN THEATER

It is not a moving picture!

The comedy of "Merton of the Movies" is a dramatization of Harry Leon Wilson's famous story of the same name by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connely. The play is under the direction of George C. Tyler and Hugh Ford. Manager Boda, of the Hartman theater, Columbus, has secured this comedy for a week's visit beginning Monday, September 22, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

The story appeared in serial form in the Saturday Evening Post about three years ago and expert opinion seems to be that the stage version excells the original story in interest.

The comedy is written in four acts; the opening scene is a country grocery store where Merton Gill is employed as a clerk. He is a movie fan and nothing can dissuade him from being a great cinema actor. He graduates from a correspondence school and with less than $300 he starts for Hollywood. What he finds out there and his experiences in the movies, and with the actresses, make up what has become famous as one of the best comedies ever produced.

"Merton of the Movies" ran for sixty weeks at the Cort theater New York. Glenn Hunter created the title role of Merton Gill and will be seen in it in Columbus. He has become so successful in the part of Merton that he is now the star of the organization. He will be supported by Jean Ford and almost the same cast that played with him so long in New York. There are thirty speaking parts in the play.

Mail orders are being received and it would be well to buy seats well in advance as "Merton" has had unusual popularity and every one will want to see Glenn Hunter in it.

AMUSEMENTS

A picture of pictures—a novelty for the theater-going public, is James Cruze latest Paramount production, "The Covered Wagon," which had its premier presentation at the Met theater last evening.

Some 500 prairie schooners, 100 horses, 600 oxen, hundreds of actors and 1000 Indians from six different tribes, go to make up this stupendous production, the largest thus far presented to the motion-picture public.

J. Warren Kerrigan, Lois Wilson, Charles Ogle, Ernest Torrence, Tully Marshall, Alan Hale, Guy Oliver and John Fox are the principal players. The picturization has adhered closely to the novel by Emerson Hough, and has lost none of the force and interest of the story. It is a love story that is different. Many difficulties are encountered by Lois Wilson and Kerrigan because of the fact that Alan Hale as Sam Woodhull believes that he is engaged to Molly, and refuses to tolerate Will Banion's (Kerrigan) attentions to her. In the end, however, everything turns out for the best and the finest motion picture ever seen in Circleville comes to a close.

NEW ROAD

Now Open for Traffic—Contractors Permit It to be Traveled.

The roadway here on the Cincinnati and Zanesville pike including section R and the Williamsport section which have been under construction during the summer were thrown open for traffic Tuesday evening by Contractors Uible and Heisten, when the last of the tar and stone was applied to the surface of the road and the bridge over Deer creek.

Section R west of town and the short section east of town are built of bituminous macadam, 18 feet in width and the section thru Williamsport is of brick, 20 feet in width, with concrete base.

Of course work on the ditches and the burms remains to be completed, but the road is in such condition that it can be traveled and many motorists are taking advantage of the opportunity after having to detour thru Atlanta all summer.

The contractors have given us a good road and they should be congratulated for their work and the excellent job they have given us and our thanks should be extended to them for the many courtesies shown us during the summer in permitting us to pass over the road while under construction. Also they should be congratulated for the speed they have shown on the job, it having been completed on schedule.

With the completion of these sections, the Cincinnati-Zanesville pike has been improved in this county from the Fayette county line to several miles east of Circleville on the Lancaster pike. A short section between New Holland and Washington C. H., in Fayette county remains to be improved before the unbroken chain will extend to Cincinnati.—Williamsport News.

Scioto Trail South of Columbus Open for Travel.

The last section of brick pavement on the Scioto Trail, State Route No. 4, in Franklin county, south of Columbus, will be opened for traffic Sunday, September 21. The work on the shoulders and ditches on three or four miles is not yet completed, but Director Boulay has ordered the road open to traffic, the shoulders and ditches to be completed later. The traveling public is asked to drive with care over that part of the road where the contractor is still working.

The road recently completed is a 20 foot brick pavement 6½ miles long running thru from the South High street experimental road at Shadeville to the Pickaway county line. At that point it joins the gravel road thru Pickaway county which was given a surface treatment last June and now presents a smooth, dustless surface. It is now possible to travel the Scioto Trail, State Route No. 4, from Columbus to a point 5 miles of Chillicothe without being compelled to travel on a dusty or muddy road, with the exception of a detour just north of Chillicothe where a brick pavement is being constructed. The detour here is reported to be in fair condition, being 4.6 miles in length and composed of brick and gravel. Motorists located in Columbus and vicinity desiring to take an afternoon ride Sunday, will find the route enjoyable as the country thru which the Scoto Trail extends is rich in scenery and farms and there should be plenty of interest to everyone along this highway.

6,000 DELEGATES PRESENT

First National Holy Name Convention Gets Under Way.

Washington, Sept. 19.—Six thousand delegates were on hand for the opening of the first national Holy Name convention on the 650th anniversary of the foundation of the society. Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, archbishop of Baltimore, acted as host to the huge crowds in the buildings of the Catholic university, which, for the occasion, had been given over to the society. A solemn pontifical high mass, attended by all delegates, signalized the opening of the convention. Music was rendered by the university choir. Following the mass, all attending bishops gathered in the universiety gymnasium, fitted up for the occasion as a conference room, to discuss archdioceasan and diocesan activities and problems.

Fjord and Farewell.

The word "fjord" comes from the old Norse, survives in the modern words "firth" and "frith," is connected with the English "fare," meaning to travel, and used in the word "farewell," and meant, most probably, in the first instance, says the author of "Norwegian Pictures," water safe for navigation on account of its sheltered position.

Central Depot for Return Truck Loads

Of Great Benefit to Both Farmers and Truckers.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Investigations by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture indicate that a central depot or warehouse where trucks delivering farm products to cities may secure return loads is of great benefit to both farmers and truckers.

A large number of trucks enter each of our cities daily bringing milk, garden and other farm products. Most of them return empty, so that half of the mileage traveled is without profit. Many have attempted to secure return loads by giving cheap rates and going to various points about the city to collect shipments. In some cases this has proved worth while, but in others it has been abandoned, as the profits did not justify the time and expense.

In the city of Baltimore a number of motortruck operators are maintaining jointly a central freight depot, which, according to all of the truck operators who make use of it, is a great success. Any freight or merchandise to be delivered to farmers in the surrounding territory may be delivered at this station through the delivery system of concerns from which purchases are made. A truck from the country after delivering the incoming load calls for the freight consigned to points along its route. This plan does away with the hit-and-miss system of collecting merchandise all over the city from many different business and manufacturing concerns. One operator who has kept a record of his expenses and profits has found that his truck earned in one year a net profit of $2,362, of which fully 65 per cent was due to return load earnings.

Preparation of Seedbed Has Important Bearing

The preparation of the seedbed has an important bearing on the control of the Hessian fly, as well as on the yield of wheat. Since infestation in the fall wheat comes mainly from two sources—stubble of previous crops and volunteer wheat—it is imperative that these sources be eliminated. This can be done (where wheat is not used as a nurse crop for clover) by plowing the land soon after harvest to a depth of about six inches. Care should be taken to turn the stubble under at least three inches of soil. The combined rolling coulter and jointer has been found very efficient in the covering of stubble, weeds, volunteer wheat and trash.

If it is not possible to plow soon after harvest, the land should be thoroughly disked at that time. Disking not only conserves the moisture and makes plowing easier, but also starts the growth of volunteer wheat, and this is conducive to the early emergence of the fly. The land should be plowed to a depth of about six inches and worked down into a good seedbed. The soil should be kept mellow and free from vegetation until wheat-seeding time.

Selecting Seed Corn

In selecting corn for seed pick ears from stalks which yield well in competition with others, are free from disease, and hang at a height convenient for husking, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Drooping ears which shed rain readily usually will give the best seed, while in the South it is necessary to choose ears that are well protected from insects by a long, tight husk covering. Care in selecting and handling seed will be more than repaid in increased corn yields.

Farm Hints

Early-plowed land brings more wheat.

Rotate the crops in your garden as a preventive of diseases and insects.

Here is a farm program worth inspecting: Pigs, cows, hens, corn and alfalfa.

More legumes mean more prosperity for farmers, business men and communities.

Spray with nicotine sulphate or dust with nicotine dust all plants infested with plant lice.

What shall it profit a gardener to raise vegetables and then let bugs and worms eat them up?

By lowering his initial cost of production in whatever way, the farmer usually adds to his profits.

Fire in the buildings destroys present wealth; fire in the woods is worse—it destroys present and future wealth.

Don't let the gardens grow up in grass where diseases can be harbored. Clean up and burn all dead and decaying plants.

Limestone does not become active immediately so fields that are to be put in alfalfa next year should be limed this year, otherwise the acidity of the soil may damage the alfalfa before it has a chance to make a start.

GUY HOWARD

Former Williamsport Boy Awarded Gold Cup at Meeting of Insurance Men.

The semi-annual state meeting of the North American Life Insurance company's managers and agents was held at the Oliver hotel in South Bend Indiana, Saturday, September 6, under the supervision of Mr. Guy Howard, a former Williamsport boy.

Concerning the meeting, the South Bend Tribune of September 7, says:

"About 75 managers and agents accompanied by their wives attended the meeting. At the luncheon held at noon time was devoted to the general discussion of insurance subjects but particularly those pertaining to the management of the North American. Paul McNamara, superintendent of agents, of Chicago, was the principal speaker at the banquet held in the pink room at the Oliver Saturday evening, at which Guy Howard, Indiana state manager, presided as toastmaster.

Mr. Howard was presented the gold cup, valued at approximately $1,000, as winner of the contest conducted among the agencies, the agency exceeding its allotment by the largest volume being awarded the prize. At the banquet another gold cup contest was inaugurated in honor of Judge Thomas E. Rooney, counsel for the company, of Chicago. Mr. Howard declares the cup is destined to remain in South Bend. The contest covers all the states in which the company is now authorized to do business."—Williamsport News.

HOME OF LOGAN, THE MINGO CHIEF.

In Saline township, Jefferson county which is the northernmost portion of the county, bordering on the river, is the site of the old camp and home of Logan, the Mingo chief. The exact spot is said to be occupied now by what is locally known as "The Old McCullough Mansion." It stands on the south side of Yellow creek and n many rods from the mouth of the creek in the Ohio river.

The place commands a fine view of the Ohio river, and also of the country round about, as it doubtless did in Logan's time. There are no signs of fortifications and the earliest settlers found none. There was really no occasion for defense, for when Logan lived there, there was peace between the whites and the Indians.

It was from this home site that the relatives of Logan, as related by him in his address to Lord Dunmore at the Logan Elm in Pickaway county, were inveigled across the Ohio river by Greathouse and massacred, thus turning the old chief against the whites, declaring, as he reflected that not a drop of his blood flowed in the veins of any living person, that he would have revenge.

Logan, as his famous speech discloses, believed that Colonel Cresap was responsible for the massacre of his people and against him he inveighed with the greatest bitterness of heart. Probably he died with that feeling.

No monument marks the site of the old Logan home in Jefferson county, but locally it is well known that the McCullough mansion stands upon it, and its historical interest is kept alive in the local traditions.—J. H. Galbraith in Dispatch.

FAYETTE COUNTY SHERIFF SAYS IT IS PEACH BRANDY.

Paul Chaffin, of New Holland, is facing a charge of illegal possession of liquor as result of a recent visit to his place by Sheriff Lewis, who confiscated a concoction made from peaches. It was claimed the beverage was non-alcoholic.

Friday is was announced that the charge would be passed against Chaffin inasmuch as the analysis made by the state chemist shows the beverage to contain 9.55 per cent alcohol, or about twice as strong as the strongest beer.

Before Mayor Briggs he recently entered a plea of not guilty to the charge by Sheriff Lewis. His hearing will take place within the next few days.

DONAHEY REPLIES

No Truth In Davis5 Charges, the Governor Says.

Columbus, Sept. 19.—Governor Donahey denied former Governor Davis' charge, made in a speech here that Donahey had accepted "valuable gifts" from contractors doing business with the state. "Harry L. Davis by plain lying is attempting to draw my administration down to the sordid level of his own," Donahey said, in a statement. "The only way he expects to win is by deceiving the people. I challenge him to name one gift and say from whom I received it."

Davis also charged that reasons other than those advanced by Governor Donahey actuated him in his recent announcement of intention not to go before the public in this campaign.

Romance of Words.

Words have a romance all their own. MacAdam was a road builder, Guillotine a compassionate physician, Derrick an inventor. General Silhouette first devised the "cut out," which in the hands of a few has been raised to the point of genuine art. Lord Sandwich made a hasty repast at the gaming table. The spurious jewelry called pinchbeck is made of a cheap alloy first used by a jeweler of that name. Mrs. Bloomer set the feminine world agog in her day. Mr. Boycott was a landlord in Ireland whose tenantry refused to pay their rentals until certain of their demands were granted. Strange is the word saunterer, sprung from La Sainte Terre (the Holy Land), whither pilgrims were wont leisurely to journey. Stranger the word haberdasher, which is said to have been derived from the German habt ihr das hier? Another exotic corruption, this time from the French, is qu'en dirai for quandary.—Detroit News.

Roman Relics in England.

In constructing an arterial road which is to be the beginning of a new Ramsgate on the western outskirts of the town, workmen have made interesting discoveries of the Roman occupation. A little below the turf they came across the remains of a Roman camp, and the traverses of old trenches hewn out of the chalk were revealed. The articles of pottery found included two water bottles and an urn, wonderfully preserved, and a piece of earthenware which showed signs of having been ornamented by the regular application of a thumbnail. One of three brass coins found was of a period of the Emperor Vespasian, who died A. D. 79.—London Times.

Do You Knock on Wood"?

It seems like slang. Yet it can scarcely be considered in that classification, because the phrase of good luck comes from an old Danish myth. "Knock wood!" We say it often. But few people know how the byword came about. Here is the authentic origin, the Kansas City Star observes: "According to Danish tradition, whenever an old Danish sea captain was about to start on a long journey in his wooden vessel, he would tap on the side of his ship and stand silently by. It was a superstition that the elfs of the forest would come out to bless his ship because it held millions of their kind in its timbers. Whatever the cause, Danish ships submitted to this quaint ritual seemed to acquire immunity from the perils of the sea. So the superstition became a custom. And the old idea has come down to us in modern times. That is why we "knock wood" whenever we do not want our luck to desert us."

ARRANGEMENTS

With Railroad Officials to Avoid Detour on Scioto Trail.

State Highway officials at the conference to be held Friday, September 19, with representatives of the Norfolk and Western railroad, in the office of the director of highways will endeavor to avoid the necessity of detouring traffic on the Scioto Trail, State Route No. 4, at the point where the Norfolk and Western railroad overhead crossing passes over the highway about four miles north of Circleville. At this point the railroad company is raising their grade and widening the roadway and making other improvements which may cause the closing of the highway. Director Boulay believes that inasmuch as there can be room made for one-way traffic, that it would be much more advisable to place a watchman at this location to regulate traffic, rather than detouring the traveling public over a long, poorly provided detour. It is estimated that the railroad company's work will not be completed before Christmas and the cost of providing watchmen to safeguard the auto traffic day and night would be nominal compared to what it would cost the public to travel over a long roundabout detour. This plan is worked out and is in line with Director Boulay's policy to "Serve the Traffic" in the best and most convenient manner.

Stage Set for Last Act

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright.)

ROBERT TERRY sometimes felt that his position was intolerable. Judith Blackstone had told him frankly that she loved him when he asked her to marry him. That was last May—and then she had dashed off with her sister-in-law, Daphne, to their summer home on the side of Dale mountain, to be gone for months, telling him definitely that there must be no exchange of letters between them.

"If we were engaged in the regular way we'd be good for nothing else all summer but writing everlasting daily letters and worrying when letters didn't come on time," Judith had said. "So don't write and then when you have your vacation the first of September you may come up to Dale mountain and we can talk of a definite engagement then."

At the beginning of the warm weather it had been definitely agreed that Robert should have no vacation until September, but by the close of July he found himself in such a state of anxiety, because of his inability to hear from Judith, that he decided that, come what might, he would take a week off from his work and go to her.

About all that Robert Terry knew of Judith's arrangements on Dale mountain was that she and her widowed sister-in-law lived together in a cabin some quarter mile off from the club lodge where they and the other members of the club had their meals together.

Robert Terry dispatched a letter, of the briefest sort, to tell Judith that he was coming. Judith promptly telegraphed back: "Don't come now. Much preoccupied. Will write."

The result of this telegram was that Robert Terry took the first train he could catch that carried him in the direction of Dale mountain. He was ready to fight the most formidable of rivals on the strength of the vivid recollection of Judith's simple, "Terry, I love you."

Twelve hours later Terry found himself in the nearest railroad station ten miles from the Dale mountain lodge. He arranged with the local garage man to motor him up the mountain road to the club encampment. It was nearing eight o'clock when Terry finally found his way to the Blackstone cottage. He stepped across the wide veranda to find the place obviously deserted for the time being.

Robert Terry felt his courage mounting. Judith had said that she loved him. She had intimated that she would marry him. They were virtually engaged. Then, argued Terry going to the front door and trying the knob, since Judith had no brothers she lived alone with a widowed sister-in-law, he was her rightful male protector. The door knob gave as he turned it vigorously. If she was "preoccupied" it was his business to find out why. Thus concluding Robert Terry let himself into the cabin. He struck a match, found a candle on a rustic table and lighted it. He saw the outlines of the room—quite large and furnished in keeping with the rough-timbered interior. This room was in order but as Robert observed the adjoining room he was struck by the disorder of it.

Two trunks, drawn away from the wall, were wide open, the trunk trays placed on the floor with dainty clothes, slippers, parasols, and hats strewn about. Quite clearly some one was making preparations for hasty departure. He recognized a rose-colored frock of Judith's. On a table was a tray containing a half-eaten sandwich and beside it—the sight of it sickened him—a large and mischievous looking revolver. Examining more closely he saw bits of torn paper about the floor, and an overturned chair. Obviously there had been some sort of struggle.

Cautiously Robert approached the revolver, about to see whether it was loaded or discharged, when he heard footsteps on the veranda, the turning of the knob and then light steps in the next room. Followed a cry of fright—It was Judith's voice. Robert breathed a prayer of thanksgiving. At least she was still breathing. "Daphne," she called, "there's a light. Some one has been here."

Robert Terry did what he considered the most considerate thing that he could under the circumstances. He coughed, gently but distinctly. Then he strode forward where the two women could see him.

"I know you didn't want me to come," he said facing Judith and, as he did so, feeling the full intensity of his love for her. "I came anyway. I hope it isn't too late—"

"But what's up?" asked Robert, waving an agitated hand in the direction of the open trunk, the scattered clothes and the revolver."

Judith put two arms out and actually embraced Robert Terry, laughing as she did so. "You dear lamb, you," she said. "We're giving a play. I'm in it and it's going to be here tomorrow. We had a rehearsal here tonight and the stage was set for the last act. It's a thriller I can tell you. And I didn't want you to come until the next day because I was afraid I'd get stage fright if you saw me act. I'm the maid. I could have been leading lady, Bob dear, only the leading lady had to kiss the leading man, and"—here Judith pressed a neat little kiss on the lips of the astonished Robert Terry—"I wouldn't think of kissing any one but my fiance."
